Packing for the Dry Season (June–October, December–February)

Tanzania's dry season is the most popular for climbing Mount Kilimanjaro and spotting the Big Five. Expect warm, sunny days on safari and freezing nights above 3,000 meters on Kili. Here's what to pack:

Kilimanjaro Clothing Essentials:

- Moisture-wicking base layers (merino or synthetic)
- Insulated mid-layers (fleece, softshell, puffy)
- 4-season waterproof jacket & pants
- Thermal gloves, buff, beanie
- Summit gear: Down jacket, warm socks, hand warmers

Safari Clothing Must-Haves:

- Neutral-colored long-sleeve shirts & trousers (khaki/olive)
- Sun hat, UV-blocking sunglasses, SPF 50+ sunscreen*
- Light fleece or hoodie for early morning drives*
- *Comfortable walking shoes or safari boots

• Camera-ready outfits (light, natural tones blend with nature)

Dry Season Extras:

- Headlamp with batteries (for pre-dawn summit hikes)
- Hydration bladder or water bottles (2-3L/day)
- Binoculars for game drives
- Power bank for off-grid charging

Pro Tip: The dry season offers crystal clear skies, perfect for sunrise summit photos on Uhuru Peak and golden-hour wildlife photography in Serengeti and Ngorongoro.

Packing for the Wet Season (November–May)

Visiting during the green season? You'll enjoy fewer crowds, vibrant landscapes, and lower travel costs. But you'll need to be rain-ready.

Wet Season Clothing for Kilimanjaro:

- Waterproof shell jacket with hood
  - Quick-dry base layers (avoid cotton!)
  - Gaiters & waterproof boots (for muddy trails)
  - Extra thermal layers (it still gets cold up high)
  - Poncho or rain cape for trail protection
- ### Safari Wardrobe:
- Fast-drying synthetic shirts & pants
  - Waterproof walking shoes
  - Rain jacket or packable poncho
  - Quick-dry socks & foot powder (trust us)
  - A scarf or shemagh for wind/dust

Wet Season Add-Ons:

- Dry bags for electronics
- Silica gel packs (keep camera gear moisture-free)
- Reusable microfiber towel
- Insect repellent (mosquitoes love rain!)

Fun Fact: The wet season is baby animal season also known as carving season in the Serengeti—capture those once-in-a lifetime moments with your waterproof camera kit.

Best Photography Gear for Kilimanjaro + Safari

You don't need pro gear to take incredible photos but if you're a content creator, vlogger, or serious traveler, pack these:

- DSLR or Mirrorless Camera with zoom lens (200mm+)
- Wide-angle lens for landscapes (Kilimanjaro summit shots)
- Binoculars with tripod mount
- Action cam (GoPro) for climbing and bumpy safaris
- Dry bag or waterproof case for rain protection
- Extra batteries & memory cards (cold drains power fast!)

Travel Essentials

Don't forget these travel musts:

- Valid passport and Tanzanian visa
- Yellow Fever certificate
- Travel insurance with medical/evacuation coverage
- USD cash for tips & souvenirs
- Adapter plug (UK-style) & multi-USB charger
- Personal first-aid kit, prescriptions, altitude meds

Luggage Tips

- Use a duffel bag (soft-sided) for Kili porters
- Carry a 30–40L daypack for summit gear and water
- Pack light: your porter allowance is 15kg (33 lbs) max
- Bring ziplock bags and waterproof liners to organize essentials

Ready to Travel Smart?

Packing for Kilimanjaro and an African safari isn't just about what you bring it's about preparing for two adventures in one. With the right gear, you'll stay comfortable, safe, and photo-ready from rainforest trails to Serengeti sunsets.
